Information You Need to Win

MTI Sports Newsletter Play

Cleveland -165 over TORONTO - In Carrasco's last start, the Tribe won 3-2 as a 160 favorite in Detroit. Cleveland is a reliable 14-0 as a favorite of more than 120 when they are off a game as a road dog and they won by one run in their starter's last start, as long as that starter had a WHIP of higher than 0.50. The SDQL text is: team = Indians and line<-120 and p:AD and s:margin = 1 and s:SWHIP>0.5

The Indians have won their last two games in this spot by an average of eight runs.

Toronto won as a small favorite yesterday, but they have not been able to respond positively as a sizable dog in this spot. The Blue Jays are 0-14 when they are a dog of more than 135 and it is not the first game of a series and held a multiple-run lead as a favorite in the previous game. The SDQL here is: team = Blue Jays and SG > 1 and line>135 and p:F and p:BL > 1 and date >= 20050614

Toronto has scored a total of two runs in their last three games in this spot and they never led.

Consider a play on the run-line as well as the money-line.

SportsBook Breakers Spotlight System

PLAY AGAINST: Teams that had a single batter walk 4+ times last game.

RECORD: 122-136 (-0.38, 47.3%) +4.7% ROI

SDQL TEXT: max:p:walks>=4

Whether its a team respecting a batter too much or just sheer randomness, there are not many times where a batter is being walked four times in a game. And because of that, it is a completely unrepeatable skill that likely had a oversized impact on a team's last game.

Active against Boston and Hanley Ramirez.

Contributor's Corner: Baseball Betting Rules

by Shaun Hess, Data Editor

Last week I covered some of my basic rules for setting the lines used here in the Diamond Digest and at KillerSports.com. This week I want to present some baseball betting rules and hopefully clear up some common misconceptions.

In my thousand-plus years of experience, I've found few people who understand many, if any, basic baseball betting rules. These rules have been around and stable for years. Failure to understand them still starts plenty of 'fights.' I personally have settled too many more than a few in my time. Still today, too few take the time to read them: too boring, I guess.

For RUN LINES and TOTALS: a game MUST go THROUGH 5 FULL Innings (unless the HOME team is already winning the game in HOME HALF of the 5th inning) to be considered a 'decision game'. If the game goes through 5 innings BUT is SUSPENDED before it is completed, there is NO RUN LINE / NO TOTAL, they are considered NO BETS and the money is refunded. In such a case, I take those RUN LINE / TOTALS out of the database. Here's the sticky part and THIS starts a L-O-T of dissension (OH BOY): say a game goes 6 innings and the HOME team is winning 2-1 and the game is suspended. For GAMBLING purposes, the HOME team WINS and we pay that winner, BUT NO TOTAL and

NO RUN Line, that money is refunded.

The next day, the game is completed AND the ROAD team comes back and wins the game, guys with that ROAD team on their ticket wanna BE PAID and DON'T understand why they aren't. MLB records will show the ROAD team as the winner BUT the KillerSports.com database has the HOME team winning that game because THE HOME tickets were paid, and NO Line was even posted on the COMPLETED game the next day, like it doesn't exist. SO when you see at the end of the season on a MLB site that a team's W/L record is a game or two different from KillerSports.com records, THAT is the reason why.

MORE CONFUSION: a game goes EXTRA INNINGS, like 14 innings and is ended by curfew, the score is 2-2 when it's called. WHO gets PAID? WELL: the game is a PUSH as far as the SIDE goes because it's a TIE. BUT the TOTAL annnnnnd THE RUNLINE are BOTH alive because the game went at least 9 innings, SO the TOTAL AND RUN LINE are GOOD, you have to hope you are on the RIGHT side and ALL of that is reflected in the KillerSports.com database results.

The Diamond Digest uses the database at KillerSports.com. In last week's edition, I discussed my basic rules for setting the lines in that database. Through this edition, I hope you better understand which games get lined.

SDQL stands for Sports Data Query Language. It is a language that allows the investigation of past sports results over the internet using your home computer. It is easy, it is fast and it is free. You do NOT have to know how to program a computer to use the SDQL. If you can perform a search on Google, you can query the past results of professional sports games.

Like the Google search, there is a text query box in which you enter what you would like to search. Unlike Google, the search has to be specific and you must use the Sports Data Query Language. The advantage of the SDQL is that you get exactly what you ask for.

For example, if you want to see all the no-hitters in major league baseball since 2004 simply enter:

hits=0 query

into the query text box and then click on the query button. It is as simple as that! The web address of the MLB query page at Killersports.com is:

<http://killersports.com/mlb.py/query>

To see all the MLB games in which a team scored at least 10 runs without hitting a home run, use the SDQL:

HR=0 and runs>=10

and then click on the query button. That's it!

The SDQL allows access to billions of situations that are of interest to sports historians, the sports media, fantasy league participants and serious sports bettors.

An ability to quickly and efficiently interrogate historical data in Major League Baseball (as well as the NBA and NFL) will provide the SDQL user a terrific advantage over those that just pore over box scores and read other people's interpretations of the results.

Perhaps the best way to grasp the SDQL is to simply try the hundreds of examples in this book. That said, there are only a couple of key ideas that will get you well on your way to becoming an SDQL master.

The first is that a query consists on a number of conditions separated by the word "and." The second is grasping the difference between the team and the opponent. In sports, there are two combatants. To distinguish between them, SDQL calls one of these the team and the other the opponent. This allows access to results based on both the performance of the team and the performance of their opponent. For example, we can see how a team performs when they score at least five runs and we can see how a team performs when their opponent scores at least five runs.

For example, to see how the Giants have performed in games in which they scored at least five runs, use:

team = Giants and runs >= 5

When this query is run, the computer responds with a records summary and a game listing of all the games since 2004 in which the Giants scored at least five runs.

Since there is no game reference on the parameter 'runs' it refers to the team and the game in question. To see how the Giants have performed in games in which their opponent scored at least five runs, use:

team = Giants and o:runs >= 5

The o: prefix on the "runs" points the runs parameter to the opponent.

To see how the Giants have performed in games AFTER they scored at least five runs, use:

team = Giants and p:runs >= 5

Here, the p: prefix on the "runs" points the runs parameter to the team's previous game.

Each one of these queries has two SDQL phrases. The first defines the team and the second gives a condition. There is no limit to the number of SDQL phrases that can be strung together with the word "and."

That's it. This is the basic structure of the SDQL. This structure will allow the thorough interrogation and investigation of historical sports data. Understanding this structure is the key to understanding the SDQL. Once you have a grasp of this structure, you will be able to perform your own investigations.

If you have any questions about the SDQL, address them to the sportsdatabase.com discussion group at:

<http://groups.google.com/group/SportsDataBase>

This group is monitored by numerous SDQL masters who will be able to answer all your questions.
